EAID ON THE SUILER. The morning was rainy, but it cleared up about noon, and the officers of the 27th and 35th concluded to try the speed of their horses. A nice, level track of 600 yards lies alongside our camps, and although the ground is rather wet for good running, a purse of $160 was quickly made up for the fastest horse, and about a dozen entered. Both regiments turned out to witness the races, and we had an exciting and interesting time for the next hour or two. When the races were over the winner sent the money to town and invested all of it in whisky, which he set out and invited all to partake. Many of the boys accepted the invitation, and as a result only a short time elapsed before officers and men were in a most glorious state of intoxication, yelling like savages and acting like lunatics generally; but all passed off in fun until a large squad of them made a dash on the sutler's tent and cleaned it out becomprehend what had happened.

All ladies who have used excline under my direction will testify to its merits. I am a graduated midwife and a practicness. After I have been using Hazeline for over "Seems mighty hard!" remarked the one year in my practice, and always with good Sergeant-Major, as he vainly tried to stick results, I do not think it a mistake to publicly announce this in order to induce more ladies to use this grand remedy. If any lady doubts "Have you boiled us a cannon ball, my statement she is cordially invited to call or write, inclosing a two-cent stamp in her "Or the regimental football?" asked letter for a reply. I am desirous to convince every lady of the merits of Hazeline, and of the truthfulness of my statement." Thousands of others have been quickly cured by this matchless remedy. Send your name and address to the Hazeline o. 5, of course."
